Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Mr. Humphrey Key has Jonquils in bloom. Mrs. Key went out and cut a bouquet for the house. Apparently they have beat most folks by about a month.

The Jonquils are on the south side of the house. Naturally we will have to put out some Jonquils on the south side of our house, too so maybe we can have some early ones next year.

Things that distract us: to be driving along a highway and suddenly hit a stretch where a trucked vehicle has traveled. The tracks make indentations in the highway and when you hit these indentations all of a sudden, you think you have a flat tire.

Happiness is finding seventy three cents in some clothes you are going through before you send them to the cleaners.

Happiness is waking up suddenly, looking at the clock and thinking that it says 7:00 a.m. then as your vision begins to clear you find that it is only 5:00 o'clock.

Happiness is finding a mistake in your account that the bank made in their favor and having them to correct it.

27 Die In Big Fire At Plush Eatery

By RANDOLPH PENDLETON
United Press International

MONTGOMERY, Ala. 8P - A fire in a cloakroom, perhaps started by a tiny spark from a cigarette, sent sheets of flame searing through a plush penthouse restaurant atop a 10-story apartment building Tuesday night, killing 27 persons.

Spreading quickly through Dale's restaurant, the fire blocked the elevator entrance and trapped about 40 diners and employees. The tragedy was the nation's second worst restaurant fire on record, exceeded only by the 492 deaths in a 1942 hotel-café at Boston's Coconut Grove.

Firemen had raised the toll to 30 during the early morning, but revised the figure later with the explanation that some bodies had been transferred between funeral homes and had been counted twice.

A UPI check showed 16 bodies at White's Chapel, seven at Leak Memory funeral home, two at Ross Clayton funeral home and two at Lee's funeral parlor.

Panicked by the walls of flames shooting from the cloakroom, some of the patrons leaped through glass windows to a roof garden. Several crashed to safety on a nine-foot ledge at the rear.

For most of the patrons, however, the Victorian decor restaurant with a panoramic view of the Alabama capital became a flaming coffin.

"Please help me, Oh, my God," they screamed from the highest floors of the Walter Bragg Smith apartment building, a modern structure on a hill overlooking Montgomery.

Occupants fled. Firemen, with the aid of extension ladders, reached as high as the eighth floor to bring down trapped residents.

But most of the occupants fled into the 66-degree night on their own, many in their pajamas and nightgowns.

The streams of water showered on the burning structure quickly froze into sheets of ice on the building and ground.

The flames burned with such intensity that a portion of the restaurant roof crashed down, leaving a ceiling of stars. Firemen found many of the bodies in a

Bank Will Observe Appreciation Time

February has been designated as "Customer Appreciation Time" at the Bank of Murray according to an announcement made today by George Hart, President. "Years ago," said Mr. Hart, "people had time to stop and properly thank their customers for their business."

At the Bank of Murray we feel this old-fashioned friendliness is an important part of the relationship between ourselves and our customers. So we'd like to use the opportunity that the Valentine Season presents to say thank you to our customers and to extend warm greetings to our other friends in the community.

The celebration will be marked by attractive Lobby Displays, and the distribution of "Thank You" cards to the bank's patrons. The cards contain a handy pocket calendar and "Important Reminders Guide," which makes them very useful.

This is the 3rd year that the Bank of Murray has celebrated Customer Appreciation Time as a special event. "We feel," said Mr. Hart, "that in this modern day of numbers it is important to emphasize that our customers are not a series of digits; they are people - friendly people - and we appreciate their loyalty to our bank."

corner of "the Restaurant" under this rubble.

Among the victims was former Alabama Public Service Commissioner Ed Pepper and his wife. Most of the first bodies identified were restaurant employees.

Began In Cloakroom
John English, the manager of Dale's, was one of the survivors. He said the fire "started in the cloakroom. Somebody must have walked in there smoking." When the fire started, around 1 p.m. EST, English said he tried to get the self-service elevator up to the restaurant.

"I waited and waited and it didn't come," he said. "So I said 'let's go down and tell the other people,' occupants of the apartments."

Trucking executive Bill White, among the 40 diners and employees in the restaurant, said he noticed smoke and then fire coming from the areas of the bar.

Witnesses said there was relative calm at first, but panic set in when sheets of flame sprang up.

Child Makes Leap Into School

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

United Press International

NEW YORK (U.P.) — Your children make the leap from the sandbox to school.

You toy with the idea of working to help build college funds, pay bills, make a dream trip come true.

And then it happens. Pains swell.

DETHRONEMENT of Adam Clayton Powell as a committee chairman apparently started something in Congress, for now the ax is out for Rep. Wright Patman (above) of Texas, House Banking chairman. Patman, 73, has been in the House nearly 38 years, and there is a feeling he runs his committee too iron-handedly.

Knees knock. You put your best face forward and look in the mirror. Not as young as you used to be. The chin starts to quiver.

Stop right there. You're going through the "confidence crisis." It happens to most women who think of returning to an office after a decade or more of nursery rhymes, baby talk and advanced sandwich.

Consulting Critical

All too many middle-aged job-seekers are hesitant and fearful says Mary D. Keyserling, director of the Women's Bureau, U. S. department of Labor.

"Good counseling can be strategic at this time of decision and adjustment," she said at a back-to-work symposium sponsored by Stern Bros. and American Girls Service in New York.

The counseling helps evaluate aptitudes and suggests the type of employment opportunity most suitable and most likely to be available.

"Often one needs the helpful guidance of the counselor especially trained in the knowledge, understanding and techniques needed to best assist the mature woman," she said.

Brighter Future

"Looking ahead, the employment picture for women is brighter than ever for many reasons. Our Labor Department experts tell us that between 1964 and 1970, the number of women workers will rise an estimated 17 per cent, as contrasted with an expected nine per cent increase in the number of men workers.

In addition, barriers to women's employment are receding. Three years ago a federal equal pay act was passed by Congress, assuring all people of equality of pay for work of equal effort, equal skill and equal responsibility.

"I don't by any means wish to suggest that everything is rosy," she said. "It isn't."

"Many barriers still impede employment advance, but they are diminishing," she said.

One cheerful bit of evidence: Some 44 per cent of all women wage and salary earners were in the $7,000 and over bracket in 1965, a significant gain over 1964.

The Rest of the News

The Almanac

by United Press International
Today is Wednesday, Feb. 8, the 39th day of 1967 with 326 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter, Saturn and Venus.

French novelist Jules Verne of "Around the World in 80 Days" fame was born on this day in 1828.

On this day in history: In 1567, Mary, Queen of Scots, was beheaded after being charged with plotting the murder of Britain's Queen Elizabeth I.

In 1940, every 10th person in two villages near Warsaw was shot to reprisal for the deaths of two German soldiers.

In 1962, Premier Kossig of Iraq was overthrown in a military coup and executed the next day.

In 1964, Princess Irene of the Netherlands renounced her right to the throne to marry Spanish Prince Carlos, whom she wed two months later.

A thought for the day — Greek story teller Aesop said: "It is easy to despise what you cannot get."

During World War II the Women Marines served in billets ranging from clerk-typist to truck driver. It wasn't uncommon to see them serving as gunnery instructors, tower operators at air stations and parachute riggers. Altogether they worked in almost 300 occupational specialties reaching a total officer and enlisted strength of 18,838 in May 1945.

The highlight of the Women Marines' service during World War II came in 1944 when 180 enlisted and 5 women officers were sent to Hawaii where they served at Pearl Harbor and the Navy's main shipyard.

When Congress passed the Women's Armed Services Integration Act in 1948 seven Women Reserve officers and 122 enlisted became part of the Regular establishment.

The story of post-war Women Marines can be told through the eyes of one woman who first came on active duty in 1952 and serving as the Women Marine Recruiter for Kentucky and southern Indiana.

Capt. Laura Kemerle's story is typical of the unassuming way all Women Marines have done their assigned task throughout the short but impressive history of women in the Corps.

Sgt. Kemerle enlisted from her home town of Atlantic City, N. J., after she had completed high school.

Recruit training at Parris Island, S. C., was followed by a 3-year tour of duty at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.

From San Diego she was transferred to Hawaii where she was assigned to the Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe, and Camp H. M. Smith. In 1957 she went to Quantico, Va., where she acted as supply chief for Headquarters Battalion of the Marine Corps Schools there. Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C., was her next duty assignment.

As supply chief of the Women Marines' clothing unit at Parris Island she was responsible for the fitting of uniforms of all Women Marine recruits. Sgt. Kemerle reported to the Marine Corps Recruit Station, Louisville, Ky., in September of 1964 where she serves as the Women Marine Recruiter for Kentucky and southern Indiana.

With more than 14 years in the Corps, Capt. Kemerle typifies the optimism of what is expected from the Women Marines of today. Their role has changed little since World War II days when they were asked to serve, and respond with an effort.

That all Americans are proud of. With many of their brother Marines now serving in Vietnam, the Women Marines, numbering more than 180 and on duty throughout the world, certainly have "freed a Marine to fight."

THIS TILING MACHINE was purchased by the Casey County Soil and Water Conservation District with money borrowed from the revolving equipment fund operated by the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources' Division of Soil and Water Conservation. Tiling machines bought through the fund have accounted for more than 1.5 million feet of tile drainage since the fund was established in 1948. Through June 30, 1966, a total of $7,203,388 has been loaned to local conservation districts from the fund to purchase heavy conservation equipment.

A BIT FROM THE BIBLE

by GEORGE M. LANDIS

WHEN WE BECOME A WILDERNESS TO GOD

Text: "Have I become a wilderness to Israel" (Jer. 2:31)?

When God's people regard God as a wilderness, a place of fruitlessness, desolation, darkness and death; they in turn become that to Him. The twenty-first verse of our chapter indicates this: "Yet I have planted thee a noble vine, wholly a right seed: how then art thou turned into a degenerate plant of a strange vine unto Me?" Thus Israel became in God's sight a dry, desert; a dark, dark and a scene of death; and with-out pleasure and beauty to Him.

Not only does God's view of us change when we get away in heart from Him; but our view of the world changes and it becomes, for a season, a paradise of delights. Under the spell of this delusion; many, like Israel, forsake God the fountain of living waters; and hear them out of terms, broken cisterns that can hold no water (Jer. 2:13). Many today are following the same tragic course, with the result expressed by the poet:

"I tried the broken cisterns, Lord, But ah, the waters failed; Even as I stooped to drink they fled, And mocked me as I wailed."

But at last there comes a sad disillusionment, as we read in the nineteenth verse, "Thine own wickedness shall correct thee; know therefore and see that it is an evil thing and bitter, that thou hast forsaken the Lord thy God."

Tragic is the hour when these vanities to which we looked for joy, vanish like a mirage in the desert.

The only relief is to turn in humble confession to Christ, acknowledge His Lordship in your life; then will you be able to sing:

"O Christ! in Thee my soul hath found, And the found in Thee alone, The peace, the joy I sought so long, The bliss till now unknown."

Then you will no longer be a wilderness to God.

SOUTHERN STATES INDUSTRIAL COUNCIL

TWISTED STORIES

The tragic flash fire in which three young Americans astronauts lost their lives is a terrible reminder of the unequal burdens of patriotic endeavor in this era. Like other uniformed young Americans in Viet Nam, the astronauts not only used their energies to their fullest in pursuit of their country's objectives but they gave their lives as well. Both the astronauts and the American servicemen who have died in Viet Nam are heroes.

At least, they should be regarded as heroes. Yet the sad truth is that American heroism is consistently downplayed. The New York Times and other liberal journals in the United States devote endless columns to alleged sufferings in North Viet Nam, but the full measure of the American servicemen's sacrifice just doesn't come through as it should.

It almost seems as though certain powerful forces in the media didn't want Americans to recognize the heroism of their patriotic youth, or even to have heroes at all.

How different the situation is from a few years ago when the television networks and liberal journals were doing their best to attribute heroism to the entire "civil rights" movement. For a number of years, any unsaved youth who hadn't taken a bath in a week but who was engaged in a "sit-in," "die-in," or "huel" was the subject of rave reviews. The Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. and his lieutenants were given far more favorable treatment in many quarters than winners of the Medal of Honor in Viet Nam.

This can only lead sensitive men to conclude that our scale of values in this country is seriously twisted. A vast engine of publicity operated at high speed during the height of the "civil rights" madness to promote those who invaded courthouses, blocked streets, impeded the work of legitimate businesses, and who generally provided incitement to violence. Synthesitic martyrs were created overnight. Numerous news coverage was lavished on those who insisted on taking over public highways to rivet national attention on their political goals.

Fortunately, the frenzy has quiet-ed somewhat. The paper-mache heroes have largely departed the scene. Yet the "protestors" still get plenty of attention. The board and scandal set on college campuses, who scream that the U. S. must stop killing "evildoers" in North Viet Nam, still get abundant time before the television cameras. How is it, one wonders, that are so few documentaries or magazine articles on the Viet Nam veterans? How is it that a tiny minority of shrill左wing protesters get more attention than the majority of young Americans who already have given to Viet Nam or who are ready and willing to go to defend their country's interests abroad?

A single Harrison Salisbury goes on a guided tour of North Viet Nam, writing scare stories, and the administration reacts by announcing that the heart of Hanoi is a privileged sanctuary. Why aren't the voices of the pilots heard in America? The pilots who flew down over North Viet Nam and later, five from Russia, missiles and anti-aircraft guns jammed into supposedly "civilian" areas?

Often it seems that the authentic voices of the American people — of the reasonable majority — are unheard through the clamor of professional left-leaning dissenters — the oddsballs and the "beat" element.

HOUSTON — Nobody had to tell Ernie Terrell. He knew it. When the bell sounded ending the fight, he headed for his corner where the first person he saw was his long-time friend and trainer, Sam Solomon.

"I'm sorry I let you down," he said through a pair of puffed-up lips. Solomon took one look at the lumps on both sides of Terrell's face and replied:

"You did not let me down. You fought a courageous fight."

A courageous one and a foolish one along with it.

Terrell came up to his title test with Cassius Clay advertised as the owner of the classiest left jab this side of Sugar Ray Robinson. So what happened? He left it home Monday night.

Too Many Cooks
"He listened to too many people," said his manager, George Hamid Jr. "He wanted to show them he had the right hand. I guess he showed them all right."

Terrell showed them so well that a full hour after the fight he still lay stretched out on a long wooden table in his dressing room, not really caring a whole lot where he was and trying to ignore the pain above his right eye where Dr. Robert Bass had just taken six stitches.

A half hour before that, Terrell finally summoned enough energy to answer questions and when he did he was so weak that he had to sit down to keep from falling down.

Naturally, one of the questions asked him was whether he had answered Clay when the champion had taunted him in mid-ring during the eighth round by repeatedly mocking him:

"What's my name?"
"What's my name?"
"What's my name?"
The answer

The answer Clay was looking for, of course, was Muhammad Ali, the Muslim name which he has adopted.

Cunningham
Has "Number"
Of Alcindor

A wire story about Dick Cunningham, the nation's leading rebounder and Murray State University appeared in the Commercial Appeal yesterday morning. It is being printed here for the interest of Ledger and Times readers.

Dick Cunningham, the nation's leading basketball rebounder, has a simple formula for defeating UCLA's Lew Alcindor if he ever gets the chance—get behind the 7-foot-1 Bruin and keep him away from the basket.

"You learn a lot by watching the pros and I've seen Bill Russell playing against Wilt Chamberlain," the 6-foot-8, 250-pound Murray, Ky. State junior said, "and that's how Russell defends him."

Cunningham, who is clearing the boards at a 21.9 per game clip, said he's seen players try to play in front of Alcindor, but "they just get the ball lobbed over their heads and Alcindor has a free shot."

The chances of Cunningham's getting on Alcindor are remote, since the Racers and Bruins would have to meet in the NCAA finals at Louisville, Ky. in March.

But Cunningham's coach, Cal Luther, has no doubts that his star would out-perform Alcindor on the boards.

"This is the best in the country. There's no doubt about it," Luther said. "The statistics have already shown that. And he's head and shoulders above Alcindor in rebounding. Alcindor is sixth among the nation's leading rebounders."

What makes Cunningham so great, in Luther's opinion, is his ability to get off the floor, coupled with his timing and his hands.

"I just don't think there's anyone with the over-all strength and body size that can get off the floor like he can and with his timing," Luther said.

"His timing is almost perfect and he can control the ball with the tips of his fingers."

Because of Cunningham, whose one-game high this year was 36 rebounds, Murray is leading the nation in rebound percentages. The latest NCAA statistics show the Racers with 85.1 of a possible 100 rebounds for a 60 per cent average.

Murray appears to have the best chance of keeping nationally eighth-ranked Western Kentucky from sweeping into the NCAA regional playoffs in March. Murray is the fourth best scoring unit in the nation with a 91.3 per game average, while Western is 12th with an average of 87.6 points per game.

Murray has led in scoring by Herb McPherson, who is hitting an average of 22.4 from the field and is the seventh best free throw shooter in the nation with an 88.1 per cent average.

Lakers Drop Another Game To North Jets

By GALE GARRISON

The Calloway County Lakers played the North Marshall Jets for the third time this season, and came home with their second loss to the Marshall County team, 69-66.

Calloway was the first to break the ice as Stan Key fed Ken Miller under the basket for a lay-up. Ronnie Reed tied the score at two all with a jumper, and a nip and tuck game was under way that saw the score tied 18 times. The first quarter ended in one of those ties at 12-12.

Barry Faith broke the tie with 7:22 left in the half to give North a two-point lead. Henry Armstrong tied the score again with a pair of free throws, and Stan Key sent the Lakers out in front on a field goal.

Mickey Holland knotted the score at 16 all on a two pointer, and Ralph Howard hit a free throw to make it 17-16. Faith hit a couple from the line and North led by three.

Clayton Hargrove tied the score on a three point trip, with 3:45 left in the quarter. Henry Armstrong, Hargrove, and Ralph Siger each scored a field goal, and the Lakers had their biggest lead of six points, at 25-19.

The Jets cut the lead down and tied it at 25 all with 12 seconds on the clock, and then went out in front by two at 27-25 at the half time intermission.

The third quarter saw North lead all the way, with Calloway getting as close as two points and North leading as much as nine points. This lead came at 44-35 with 2:30 left in the quarter.

Calloway had cut the lead to four going into the final period, but North ran the lead back up and led by eight points with 6:48 to go. The Lakers started to play catch-up, and tied it at 50 all on a two-pointer by Armstrong a little over five minutes later. Armstrong then took the lead for the Lakers ten seconds later.

Steve Majors tied the game on a one-plus from the line, Siger sent Calloway back in front, and Holland tied the score again, and a see-saw battle was underway that lasted for the next four minutes when Holland hit three straight free throws to tie the game for North Marshall.

Mickey Holland was the high point man for the night with 31 points, Ronnie Reed was the only Jet in double figures with 10 points.

Henry Armstrong led the Lakers in scoring, with Stan Key adding 19, and Ralph Siger getting 11. Siger and Key both fouled out in the fourth quarter, and Armstrong set part of the second quarter out due to an injury.

The Jets won the game at the free throw line as the Lakers outscored them from the field hitting 24 field goals to North's 21. North hit 27 of 36 from the line and Calloway hit 18 of 23.

Calloway hit 40 percent of their field goals and 78 percent of their free throws, while North hit 42 percent of their field goals and 71 percent from the line.

The Lakers will be on the road again Friday night as they travel to Sedalia to take on the Lions.

Calloway — 22 25 40 — 66
North Marshall — 12 27 44 — 69

Calloway (66) — Siger 11, Miller 2, Hargrove 9, Key 19, Armstrong 19, Marshall (66) — Barrett 9, Holland 11, Reed 10, Majors 7, Faith 9, Howard 3.

NATS' ALLEN SIGNS
WASHINGTON — Hank Allen, 28-year-old brother of Philadelphia third baseman Richie Allen, became the 7th player to come to terms with Washington when he signed Tuesday for the 1967 American League season.

We have just learned of one more reason our fishermen and hunters hesitate about visiting us at the office. Other than the modest and shy problem, which they all share, some have the mistaken idea that we are in the main office of the Ledger & Times. We can understand why you might "shy away" from a bustling office, but if we are able to explain "our type" office, we will be on the right track, in removing the obstacle.

To avoid frightening the hounds, we were allowed to use the quietest room in the building. There are no phones, machines or people to frighten or embarrass either hunters or hounds, so here is how you find us. The third door from the Ledger and Times entrance, opens into our sanctuary.

The number 109 is over the door, and a "Fins 'n Feathers" letterhead is on the outside door. We are "next to" Charm Beauty Shop. Don't knock, just open the door and walk in. YOU ARE WELCOME. If you miss us, anyone in the Ledger and Times office will be pleased to help you.

Please bring your hounds, or fish, and let us get acquainted. Oh, yes! Be sure to bring your ear plugs, as Gale Garrison insinuated that junior is a "gabbler."

Mr. Hill Gardner: We are very disappointed in missing the picture of your nice string of fish. Mr. Gardner is a REAL sportsman. He hunts almost all types of game, is a great fisherman, and if that isn't enough... he has some Black and Tan hounds. We have made many attempts to meet this gentleman and his hounds, but with no success at all.

We have talked to many people concerning this illusive gentleman. Everyone assures us he is a very nice person, who is avoiding us, not because of a superior attitude, but only because he is a quiet and shy person by nature. Mrs. Gardner, won't you please escort your hunter to our workshop?

We have a number of families who come by to visit. Youngsters come by frequently and ladies often come alone. Mrs. Gardner, if the "master" won't budge, won't you and little Tony visit with us? We can guarantee he will enjoy it. We believe Mr. Gardner would enjoy seeing our pictures of the hounds, most of which he will know personally, we'll bet.

We shall try once more to say a special Thank You to Mrs. Jo Burken, for all the assistance she gives us. This lady has not missed one day, she hasn't brought us information or an article, magazine, names or messages. If there were more Jo Burkens among our list of friends, we could give you a much better article, with about half the "cold trailing" we are forced to do.

Before we misplaced it, we had a "Hounds' Enrollment Card" neatly filled out, by a young lady who wishes her fearless hunter to be properly acknowledged. The owner is Miss Linda Donelson, the 16-year-old daughter of Lewis and Odelle Donelson of Murray Route 6. Linda has one younger brother, Roy and an older sister, Evelyn. This famous canine is "Michelle" (or Missy) and is thoroughly pampered by all members of the family.

We are taking one paragraph from an article in the Mayfield Messenger, and passing it on to you. It will be of interest to a number of Calloway sportsmen.

The Jackson Purchase Gun Club will hold their official opening, Sunday afternoon, February 19, with a Registered Trophy Shoot. The public is invited to visit the club and shoot, or spectate, a spokesman said.

Personally we would enjoy this event, even though we are not especially fond of guns. You Calloway "sharp-shooters" would enjoy this and you might prove how "good you really are."

Again we welcome you to our shop! You don't need a reason. Just come by and see the pictures of your friends and their hounds. Bring the "little ones" — all of them.

Bobby Dodd Tells Why Is Quitting

ATLANTA — Why did Bobby Dodd insist two weeks ago he would continue coaching even after he knew his health would force him to the sidelines? The answer, plain and simple: Expediency.

Dodd, after telling UPI 12 days ago he hoped to coach three or four more years, Monday announced his retirement and disclosed he had been considering the matter for months.

An official in the Georgia Tech Athletic Department said Dodd had to keep throwing people off the track because it would have hurt recruiting if the truth had been known.

"How do you think our boys would have responded at the Orange Bowl if they had known he was stepping down?" the official asked. "Not knowing, they lost to Florida 27-12."

The retirements reports began last fall; and Dodd, by inference denied them all. However, it is true that a careful study of those denials shows that the man who was head coach at Georgia Tech for 22 years never flatly said he wouldn't step down.

To an Alabama rumor last fall, he replied, "any such announcement naturally would come in Atlanta." To a similar report by a Miami radio station during the Orange Bowl weekend, he replied, "that station never spoke with me."

Dodd had been battling from a kidney disorder for quite awhile. He said he considered quitting after the 1965 Oster Bowl, but decided to wait out the 1966 season and see how he turned out.

"He had that responsibility to Georgia Tech," the official said. "Dodd's big job at the moment is to find his own successor. He wanted to find his own successor. He wanted to find his own successor. He wanted to find his own successor."

"He had that responsibility to Georgia Tech," the official said. "Dodd's big job at the moment is to find his own successor. He wanted to find his own successor. He wanted to find his own successor."

All the while he kept up a front.

Miss Ann Russell Exchanges Wedding Vows With James Wayne Harris In Beautiful Ceremony At the Home Of Bride's Parents

Mr. and Mrs. James Wayne Harris

The wedding of Miss Ann Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustine W. Russell of Murray, to James Wayne Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harris of Chicago, Ill., was solemnized on Saturday, January 28, at the lovely home of the bride on North Seventh Street.

Dr. H. C. Chiles, minister of the First Baptist Church, performed the impressive double ring ceremony at ten o'clock in the morning in the presence of the families.

Guests were greeted at the door by the bride's aunt, Miss Cyprie Beale. She asked each one to sign the bridal book which was on a hall table where a beautiful arrangement of fern, white chrysanthemums, and roses in a cut glass bowl had been placed.

Throughout the home there were lovely white flowers. The altar was in front of the fireplace in the living room. The mantel had a large arrangement of white chrysanthemums and white snapdragons set among ferns and other greenery.

The musical music was presented by Miss Lillian Walters, pianist. While the guests were being seated she played "Prelude" by Fitch, "Chair de Lune" by Debussy, "Ahi Sweet Mystery of Life" by Herbert, and "A Wedding Prayer" by Dunlop. The "Bridal Chorus" by Wagner was used for the processional and "Wedding March" from Mendelssohn was played for the recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding dress, white street length textured tulle with a sheer mesh skirt and short sleeves and featuring a round neckline with a deep front yoke. Her shoulder length veil of silk illusion was held by a cluster of reemebroidered Algonquin lace petals, studded with pearls. Her only ornament was an antique gun burst diamond pin which was a wedding gift from her maternal grandfather to her maternal grandmother.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations showered with pet and white satin streamers tied in bows. Miss Mary Kay Russell, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a dress of pink textured tulle with a short veil of pink illusion and was secured to matching pink tulle bows. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink

Those attending from Murray were Madeline M. P. Christopher, George S. Hart, Alfred Lindsey, Henry McKenzie, Hugh L. Oakley, John C. Quertemus, Paul Starn, Ralph Tessenner and Dr. Beverly Fowler; and Miss Ann Herron and Mrs. Olga Freeman from Hazard.

Mrs. Nunnelee was assisted in serving by her daughter, Marilyn. Mrs. Hart, president of the chapter, presided at the meeting, during which her annual report was approved by the chapter. Plans were completed for a dinner party to be held at Ken-Bar with husbands of members as guests on Thursday of this week. Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Tessenner are in charge of arrangements.

Miss Herron, Educational chairman, in her report spoke of the effect of changing times on educational demands.

The chapter voted to participate in the Centennial Project to be sponsored by the Supreme Chapter of the Sisterhood, commemorating the founding of the organization in 1889. The erection of Centennial Center, adjoining the Executive Office Building of the State of Iowa, is the project.

Dr. Beverly Fowler was accepted as an exchange member from her chapter in Ord, Nebraska.

The next meeting will be held February 16 in the home of Mrs. Freeman, in Hazard, with Mrs. Hart as the assisting hostess.

Mrs. Claude Miller Hostess For Meet Hasseltine Class

Mrs. Claude Miller opened her home on the Martins Chapel Road for the meeting of the Ann Hasseltine Sunday School Class of Memorial Baptist Church held Monday evening.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. J. O. Reaves, leading in prayer. The minutes were read and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Loyd McKel.

Mrs. Quinon O'Brien gave the devotion on the theme of "Love" with her scripture reading being from the fifth chapter of Matthew and the fourteenth chapter of John. Prayers were led by Mrs. Jennings and Mrs. Lester Garland.

Others attending not previously mentioned were Mrs. Milburn Adams and Mrs. Cross Spann. Delicious refreshments in the St. Valentine's Day motif were served by the hostess to the eight members present.

Such sprays are suggested for a jet of water between the teeth below the gum line, and other areas where toothbrushes don't reach.

New addition to aid kitchen organization is a revolving canister set. The four canisters are on a turntable base, which pivots on steel bearings to bring contents to the fingertips. The set comes in gold, fawn beige, and dark olive.

New for the lawn is a bird bath fountain that also serves as lawn or garden sprinkler when attached to a hose. The same manufacturer. Also a new double deck combination bath and feeder.

There's plenty of color in the kitchen these days. Now new tools come with blue, orange, chartreuse and avocado colored handles in 18 items previously sold in black or white.

Kenlake Hotel, First In System, Will Open Again February 24

FRANKFORT — Kenlake Hotel, constructed in 1932 at Kenlake State Park near Aurora, was the first modern guest lodge to be built in the State's system of vacation parks.

Since that time, its lobby, lounge, dining room and guest rooms have undergone extensive renovation "to maintain the high qualities guests expect of Kentucky State Parks," according to Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell.

Situated beside giant Kentucky Lake, the 1,400-acre park is located on U.S. Highway 68, some 60 miles southeast of Paducah.

The Parks Department reported more than 850,000 persons visited Kenlake during 1966. It will re-open on February 24.

Accommodations include 48 guest rooms in the lodge, eight two-bedroom, 16 one-bedroom and nine efficiency cottages, a dining room, a pool for overnight guests, 65 tent and 25 trailer camping sites which are located near a central service building.

Public use facilities include picnic shelters, a beach and bathhouse, a boat dock and rental boat service, sailboat launching area, a tennis court, a nine-hole regulation golf course, horseback riding and hiking trails. Additionally, there is a planned program of summer recreation centered around outdoor variety entertainment.

KENLAKE LAKESIDE TRAIL—The meandering horseback riding trail at Kenlake State Park near Hardin winds its way along giant Kentucky Lake, affording riders a spectacular view every step of the way. Summer fun at the family vacation center includes fishing, boating, golfing, tennis, picnicking, swimming and a host of other activities.

Messy Housewife Has Other Qualities

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My married daughter lives 30 miles from me. She has a wonderful husband and a year-old child. She has a nice, new apartment and everything to do with her whenever I visit her. The place is a mess and she is usually in her robe. There is never a place to put anything or to sit down. How my son-in-law can stand it is beyond me.

I know his mother, and she is an immaculate housekeeper. How can I make my daughter see the shame of it? When I walk in and see the mess, she doesn't even get embarrassed. She and her husband live along like two lovebirds now, but I'm afraid if she doesn't start keeping house properly it won't last.

HER MOTHER: Fortunately for your daughter, her husband's values are not the same as yours. If they were, he surely would have insisted that she improve her housekeeping. Don't try to "shame" your daughter.

Pretext you don't notice the mess. She may have qualities that are more important to her husband than the ability to keep house. For her sake, I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: This is the second marriage for both my husband and me. It is a happy marriage, and we get along beautifully. We've been married nearly five years. Our problem is that we want like to have a baby. My husband is 36 and I am 41. (I look 35.)

We want a baby very much, but the thing that has me worried is my age. Am I too old to have a baby? Would people start "What about complications?" If my doctor says to go ahead, should we venture into parenthood at our ages? "AGE CONSCIOUS"

DEAR AGE CONSCIOUS: Why not? When the good Lord decrees that a woman is "too old" to have a child, Mother Nature informs the decree by revoking the privilege.

For Abby's booklet, "How to a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal 90069.

Pack the whole family's sleep-year and toiletries in one suitcase when traveling; only one bag then needs to be removed from the car on overnight stops.

BOTH EARTH AND MOON are in this photo, a "first" by the Applications Technology Satellite-1 from its stationary orbit 22,300 miles out in space. The Moon is over the North Pole and that cloud cover obscures the Western Hemisphere. The Moon is more than 270,000 miles distant. The photo was made with the ATS-1's "Spin Scan Cloud Camera," which generates one line of a 2,000-line photo each time the satellite rotates. It takes 20 minutes to record each picture—this one at 1:15 p.m. EST.

Take Care Of Your Heart

Do you:
*Eat recklessly, without giving a thought to your weight or your blood cholesterol?
*Smoke a pack of cigarettes or more a day?
*Get little or no daily exercise?
*Put off seeing your doctor for a checkup, believing that what you don't know won't hurt you?

Each of these practices raises the odds against you in favor of an early heart attack. (Your Heart Association warns. At best, population statistics indicate, if you are a man in your fifties, the odds are about one in five that you will suffer a heart attack before the end of your 65th year.

You can, however, raise or lower these odds by the way you live now. Although we do not yet have all the answers to what causes heart attacks, we do know that certain positive steps we can all take may reduce the risk of heart attack.

We know, for example, that men with very high levels of cholesterol in the blood have a heart attack risk more than three times that of men with very low levels of blood cholesterol. And we know that blood cholesterol levels can be brought down by relatively simple changes in the diet. Your doctor can advise you on these, and your Heart Association will be glad to send you a free leaflet on the subject.

We know, also, that middle-aged men who are 30 per cent or more over their normal weight have twice the risk of suffering a heart attack compared with middle-aged men of normal weight.

We know that middle-aged men who smoke a pack or more of cigarettes a day have three to five times the heart attack risk of non-smokers. This risk factor is reversible: cigarettes smokers who give up the habit reduce their risk to near-normal levels.

Similarly, research has shown that physically active men have a clear-knocked a window out and went out to where the roof garden was and I lay down on the patio and got my clothes soaking wet." While said, Firemen came about 20 minutes later, he said, and led them down the stone stairways inside the building.

Get Out Last
"I went out last," White said. "There were some hysterical women and I pushed them ahead of me. I picked up a colored waiter who had passed out after we got to the first floor and carried him out bodily."

Warren Garrison, a salesman from 25100 Circle Drive Southfield, Mich., smashed a window and leaped onto a ledge. He edged to safety, but said two of his friends did not make it with him. He didn't know whether they were among the victims.

out advantage over the more sedentary. For example, postal clerks have more heart attacks than the postmen who deliver the mail; London bus drivers have more heart attacks than conductors who run up and down the steps of double-decker buses all day. Exercise may make the difference. Regular moderate exercise, rather than occasional bursts of strenuous exertion, is advised as the pattern that benefits heart and blood vessels.

Some physical conditions, such as high blood pressure and diabetes, also raise heart attack risk. Getting medical attention in time and remaining under a physician's care is the key to guarding your heart from these oft-hidden hazards.

You can improve your odds, then, by changing your eating habits, your smoking habits and your exercise habits, and by seeing your doctor regularly and following his advice. You can also boost the odds for everyone by giving more dollars to the Heart Fund this month for vital heart research.

Bob Wilson, the hospital administrator has a tough job.

He not only has to keep the hospital commission and the employees happy, but also the people he serves, the patients and their families.

Hurray for Murray State for giving Western the worst scare of the year. Murray might well have sunk the Toppers Monday night.

Sport helped us fix him a better place to sleep Monday night. With the mercury forecast for ten or twelve above, we figured he needed a warmer place.

All the time we were fixing up his boudoir in the airport, Sport was right with us and assisted by getting in exactly the place where he was in the way the most.

We fixed things up so the wind would not get to him and he seemed to know what we were doing. As we worked, he went in and out of his newly refurbished apartment, practically knocking us down as he went in and out, back and forth, etc.

Every now and then as if to punctuate this appreciation, he would rear up and plant his huge paws in the middle of our back. We never would have finished with it had it not been for Sport's help.

We do not care for spam or any facsimile thereof.

However we go for hot tamales. To keep from getting so coffee up we have changed to hot chocolate in the afternoon and hot tea at noon.

Doves roosting in the trees behind the house. Their heads were pulled back into the deep feathers around the neck and their feet were well covered by breast feathers also.

We have often wondered how the tiny birds stand ten and twelve degree cold. They do however and are as chipper as can be when the sun comes out.

Sport's water is frozen each morning and we have to remove the ice and refill his bowl with warm water that will not freeze too quickly.

INTRODUCING — The Firebird, Pontiac Motor Division's new personal sports car, is shown above in the convertible model. The Firebird 400 features Pontiac's famed 400 cubic-inch V-8 engine, special hood with dual air scoops and wide oval red line tires. The Firebird is also available in a hardtop coupe and other engines offered include the overhead camshaft six-cylinder standard and the 326 cubic-inch V-8 optional. The Firebird is named after a legendary Indian symbol which promised action, power, beauty and youth. It was first used in 1954 on General Motors' dramatic gas turbine powered car, Firebird I, shown in the background.
